Haskett sentencing set for December

BY DAN SINGLETON
 For the Review

The sentencing of a 21-year-old man involved in a dog abuse case that has garnered international media attention is now expected to conclude December 17 – more than two years after the crime.

Daniel Charles Haskett, a former Didsbury resident, pleaded guilty last summer to charges of animal cruelty and obstruction of justice.

Following a number of delays, including an application to have the guilty pleas thrown out, sentencing got underway before Judge Ian Kirkpatrick in Didsbury provincial court on Oct. 21.

Haskett and a young offender were charged after a Lab-colle cross named Daisy Duke was found severely injured on a Didsbury street in October 2006.

The dog, which had been dragged behind a vehicle, suffered injuries that were so severe it had to be put down.

Since the date of his arrest, Haskett's case has been adjourned numerous times, including after he parted ways with his first lawyer.

During last week's court appearance, Judge Kirkpatrick rejected an application by the defence to have the earlier guilty pleas tossed out, saying Haskett received adequate legal representation prior to pleading guilty.

Prosecutor Gordon Haight then made the Crown's submissions regarding sentencing, saying Haskett should be jailed for between three and five months, and prohibited from owning animals. (Although the maximum sentence for animal cruelty is now five years imprisonment, the maximum at the time of the offence was six months).

Haight told Judge Kirkpatrick that a jail sentence is needed to adequately denounce the crime and to deter others.

He called Haskett's crime a "prolonged period of torture of the animal."

Haight said there are several aggravating factors the judge should consider in sentencing: the violence of the offence; the deliberation shown by the accused during the crime, including not seeking help for the animal; that Haskett showed "no concern for the suffering of the animal"; and that the animal was a family pet.

"This animal suffered because this offender didn't want to get in trouble," said Haight. "They weren't doing it for any real concern for the animal."

Commenting on the extensive media coverage the case has garnered, Haight said no amount of publicity should give the accused a "judicial discount" on his sentence.

A non-custodial sentence would undermine general deterrence and could reflect badly on the justice system, he said.

"Deterrence and denunciation are particularly pressing in this case," he said. "Does anyone really think the imposition of anything but a real jail sentence would be acceptable to this community?"

Defence lawyer Alan Pearce called on Judge Kirkpatrick

"I would like to apologize to my community and my peers for doing what I did. I regret the decision I made in 2006. I know there is no excuse for what we did."

to impose a conditional sentence order, which would see the accused serve a jail sentence in the community.

Pearce said the accused's relative youthfulness (he was 19 at the time of the crime), the fact he has family support, the fact he pleaded guilty, and his plans to join the Canadian army should be mitigating factors in sentencing.

Pearce read aloud a number of hate mail letters received by Haskett and his family. Comments include: "Your life is over", "You two cowards will pay", "You are a low-life" and "You will rot in hell for what you've done."

Pearce said Haskett has been the target of death threats and the Haskett family home has been the target of gunfire.

Haskett himself made a brief address to the court.

"I would like to apologize to my community and my peers for doing what I did," said Haskett. "I regret the decision I made in 2006. I know there is no excuse for what we did."

Haskett's mother also addressed the court.

"The last two years have been pure hell," she said. "We've been treated like we are bad people and we're not."

In his closing remarks, prosecutor Haight condemned any unlawful acts directed at Haskett or his family.

Tamara Chaney – who spearheaded a 112,000 name animal rights petition in response to the Daisy Duke case, a petition that later went before the House of Commons – attended last week's court session.

"I am so disappointed (with latest adjournment)," said Chaney. "There are not enough words for it. I cannot believe our justice system. It is pathetic, to wrap it up in one word. They've been talking in circles. It's a waste of time for the Crown prosecutor and the judge."

"I want to see (Haskett receive) a jail term and mandatory counseling. He needs counselling."

New mega mall to impact town's ER services

BY MARK LAYCOCK
For the Review

Emergency services bordering the QEII are anticipating an increase in calls following the opening of the Balzac mega mall.

Police, fire and ambulance service from communities including Crossfield, Carstairs, Didsbury and Olds and even as far north as Red Deer could be dispatched to the QEII more frequently if predictions about increased traffic volumes are accurate.

Didsbury RCMP Sgt. Kevin O'Dwyer said the mall could see as many people every day as the population of the city of Airdrie.

"So that's going to be an awful lot of people being generated to that area," said O'Dwyer.

While the mall isn't expected to open until August 2009, he notes the RCMP has already begun planning for its opening, including putting in a request for an additional member to help with the workload.

Over the next few months he said discussions will also be held with Calgary City Police and with members in Airdrie.

Ellish Lemieux, spokesperson for the solicitor general and public security, said Alberta Sheriffs have been working closely with RCMP to formulate a plan for the mall's opening, and may move to allocate additional members to the area.

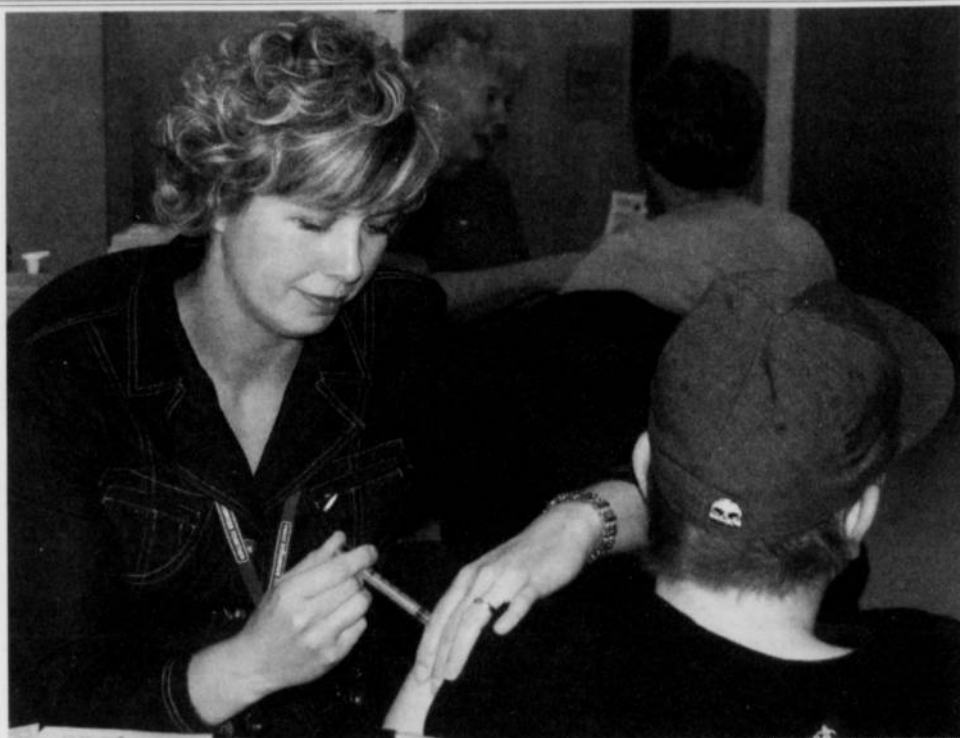

"We're kind of basing (numbers) on what the RCMP are anticipating. We're aware that there is an anticipated increase expected and as to how many and when that will start we're not too sure," said Lemieux.

There are currently 24 traffic sheriffs in the Airdrie-Carstairs area.

Meanwhile, director of Mountain View Regional Emergency Services Nicholas Thain said that while the EMS service could see an increase in calls, it's hard to tell because EMS service will become the responsibility of the provincial government in 2009.

"By August 2009 EMS will be an integrated part of health, so the deployment of ambulances will be the responsibility of a centralized dispatch... areas that we may respond to now may be responded to by different emergency service resources," said Thain.

The new 1.4 million sq. ft. mall will boast 17 anchor stores, more than 200 specialty stores and will have enough parking lot space for 6,000 vehicles.

Regional transportation a priority

BY SABEEN AHMAD
Didsbury Review

Didsbury councillors are pushing to make regional transportation a top priority of the Municipal Area Partnership next year.

MAP includes council representation from the Town of Carstairs, Town of Didsbury, Town of Olds, Town of Sundre, Village of Cremona, and Mountain View County and addresses intermunicipal issues and concerns as well as provides a forum for regional cooperation.

Didsbury CAO Roy Brown said transportation is what residents of Didsbury feel is an important issue.

"Our residents as well as developers have indicated that there is a need for more daily transportation into Calgary and return," he said.

Brown also says that according to results from the FCSS needs survey, "residents in both the county and town identified a need for transportation particularly for seniors to take them to medical appointments, etc."

Following the province's "green" initiative that will be providing grant money for mass transportation, Brown said that council felt the region should be developing a transportation strategy.

"That is why this initiative was taken to MAP."

Brown mentioned that the county had also identified transportation as a need.

Coaches urged to wear helmets on ice

BY SABEEN AHMAD
Didsbury Review

Didsbury Minor Hockey Association is strongly recommending that all coaches wear helmets following the recent death of a locally known midget triple A hockey coach.

Ron Ebbesen succumbed to his head injuries on October 21st following an incident where he hit his head on the ice at the start of a Strathmore UFA Bison team practice.

At the DMHA board meeting last week, the issue of making coaches wear mandatory helmets was brought up. Didsbury's midget's coach, Gord Kerr sees it as becoming mandatory as soon as before Christmas. "I will be including it in my equipment," he said referring to his helmet.

DMHA posted a notice on its website shortly after the incident stating it recommends all coaches wear helmets on the ice.

It is not current policy to do so.

Kerr said young players are quicker on the ice and in their skates and that coaches may not be as quick as they used to be.

New policy proposed for construction, demolition waste

BY SABEEN AHMAD
Didsbury Review

Town residents, businesses and those engaging in construction and demolition may soon be under new recycling rules.

Council is set to discuss a proposed construction and demolition waste policy during tonight's regular council meeting.

Mountain View Regional Waste Commission is asking all municipal councils in its boundaries to adopt a policy that would reduce the amount of construction and demolition waste going into the landfill.

Neil Kivell, CAO of the Mountain View Regional Waste Commission says the construction and demolition sector "represent(ed) sixty-five per cent of all the waste" with a nine per cent recycle factor.

"That's seventy-one per cent less than what we'd like it to be," said Kivell.

Kivell said the commission has been searching for ways to enhance recycling in the construction and demolition sector, and feels the policy will be a step in the right direction.

"C (construction) and D (demolition) is a good one because it can easily be separated," said Kivell, mentioning the ease of separating windowpanes and metal.

This policy comes at the same time as the Alberta government works on creating and mandating industry-wide practices that will at one point be accepted for all construction and demolition projects.

According to information provided to town council, the province's committee "is in its infancy and will most likely not create province wide restrictions for a number of years." Mountain View Regional Waste Commission is getting a head start with the creation of its own policies and procedures in order to "reduce the transition once the province has mandated construction and demolition waste management policies."

Youths will lead human rights fight

DAN SINGLETON

The creation of a new provincial website aimed at engaging young people in the promotion of human rights across Canada is a good for Albertans of all ages.

As the future leaders of this community, province and nation, young people have the largest stake in ensuring human rights in Canada are upheld today and in future times.

The site - www.takingitglobal.org - has been created by the Alberta Human Rights and Citizenship Commission on the 60th anniversary of the United Nations Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

"Essential elements of a discrimination free society are public awareness and education," said Brenda Scragg, Acting Chief Commissioner of the Alberta Human Rights and Citizenship Commission. "The more each of us knows about human rights, the better equipped we are to decide what we each want to do to make a difference."

Pat Short, the president of the Canadian Association of Statutory Human Rights Agencies, added: "It is our hope that this website will feed the flames of their knowledge, passion and commitment, and they will carry the torch of human rights courageously and help make the world a better place for all people."

The new site contains a great deal of information about such things as how human rights abuses can focus on racism and poverty. It also provides tips on how young people can promote participation and engagement in promoting human rights.

For example, the Right to Education section of the site reads, in part, as follows:

"Another barrier in Canada's school system is the widespread incidence of bullying and discrimination. Students often experience sexual or other harassment. Youth who are from radicalized backgrounds, have disabilities, or are gay or lesbian frequently face peer aggression. Youth and children who experience bullying often suffer from depression and lack of self-esteem, making the educational experience difficult."

Using modern technology, the Alberta Human Rights Commission has created a worthwhile tool in the fight to protect human rights in Alberta.

Of course it will take more than a new website to make sure all citizens are treated with equality and fairness.

And unfortunately, there are ongoing examples of human rights abuses in many provincial communities, including in west central Alberta. For example, derogatory comments about women, the overweight, aboriginals and minorities remain all too common in many towns.

While Central Alberta young people should be encouraged to take a lead role in the fight against human rights abuse, it is important to remember that other stakeholders, such as parents, must also continue to do their part too.

Hopefully this new website will be a useful tool for students and for the community at large.

Taxpayers shouldn't cover health region liabilities

SCOTT HENNIG

Much has been made over the past couple of weeks about $5.9-million the provincial government has spent on severance packages for fired CEOs of the former regional health authorities. If these generous packages aren't enough to get the blood boiling, left-over deficits, bonuses and unfunded liabilities in the executives' supplementary pension plans should be.

In fact, the severance payments may be the smallest cost taxpayers will have to bear.

For starters, taxpayers are on the hook this year for an additional $97-million to cover deficits accumulated by the health regions.

Calgary Health Region was the largest offender, contributing the lion's share of the "surplus" deficit this year. But at this point, nobody should be surprised that Calgary's health region is running a deficit, as it has run deficits in three of the past four fiscal years. While that alone should have been enough to send CEO Jack Davis packing - sans a severance - it apparently wasn't even enough to keep Mr. Davis from receiving a bonus.

In fact, Mr. Davis received $192,000 in bonuses and extras last year. One can only imagine how large of a bonus he might have received if he had balanced the region's budget and significantly reduced waitlists. The same goes for Sheila Weatherill, CEO of Capital Health who received $136,000 in bonuses and extras last year despite running an $18.5-million deficit.

However, setting aside the bonuses, deficits and severance payments for which taxpayers are already on the hook, the expenses that have yet to garner widespread outrage are unfunded liabilities in some of the health authorities' supplemental employee retirement plans (SERPs).

SERPs are a fairly new phenomenon in government, and are generally established only for senior executives. Essentially they are a second, more generous defined-benefit pension plan, on-top of their regular defined-benefit pension plan.

All defined-benefit pension plans are prone to run unfunded liabilities due to the fact that it's rather difficult to accurately predict life expectancy, rates of return, and rates of inflation some 30 years down the road. This is precisely why the province should be converting all of their defined-benefit pension plans to RRESP-style, defined-contribution pension plans.

However, when it comes to health authority SERPs, their unfunded liabilities were not caused by missed targets, they were caused by health authority executives deciding not to fully fund the pensions.

As pointed out recently by Alberta's auditor general, of the $30-million owed to senior health authority executives in SERPs, $22-million is missing.

Senior executives at the Mental Health Board as well as Calgary, Capital, Chinook, and Peace Health Regions, made the decision not to put money aside to fund their own SERPs, going against standard government practice.

To be clear, unlike unfunded liabilities in other pension plans, where often the decision to not fully fund was made decades ago by governments, the decision not to fund Jack Davis and Sheila Weatherill's SERPs was made by... Jack Davis and Sheila Weatherill!

This was not a decision handed down to them by the minister of health, the premier or any other representative of Albertans. These health region executives either knowingly decided to leave taxpayers with a debt for their SERPs or they were ignorant of standard government practice.

Either way, taxpayers should not be on the hook to foot this bill. Health Minister Ron Leppert, should have a look in the empty SERP accounts and tell those former senior executives at the offending health regions: "There's nothing in your SERP account, so I guess that's what you get!"

These executives only have themselves to blame, so taxpayers should take no pity. Just like few should feel sorry for them if they were suddenly homeless as a result of setting their own house on fire.

There are some unfortunate and expensive costs taxpayers are going to have to bear with the transition from nine health authorities down to one, but bailing out millionaire ex-executives for their own mistakes should not be one of them.

- Scott Hennig is the Alberta director of the Canadian Taxpayers Federation

What you need to know about changing smoke alarm batteries

When you change your clocks on November 2nd, remember to change the batteries in your smoke alarms!

- Smoke alarms provide early warning of smoke and fire danger to enable quick evacuation, night or day, during a fire emergency in your home.
- Smoke alarms did not sound an alarm in one-third of all Alberta homes that had a fire incident, primarily due to dead or missing batteries.
- Never remove batteries from smoke alarms for other uses or to stop nuisance alarms. A "chirping" sound means "replace the battery."

For more information on smoke alarm safety, visit www.aema.alberta.ca

Town supports county as water member

BY SABEEN AHMAD
Didsbury Review

The Town of Didsbury is supporting the inclusion of Mountain View County as a new member of the Mountain View Regional Water Services Commission despite current policy that restricts membership to only founding member municipalities.

Mountain View County reapplied last month to be a member of the commission. The application is to be considered Nov. 12 and requires a majority vote of 75 per cent in favour to pass.

According to the commission's current regional water supply policy, all new areas to be supplied water outside of the boundaries of the original members will be considered as customers only.

The original six members include Innisfail, Bowden, Olds, Didsbury, Carstairs, and Crossfield.

The water commission will have to approve a change in policy to allow Mountain View County as a member.

The county made its original membership request in 2007. The commission had not voted on the request.

Several voting members are now required to vote in favour of the application as per agreements since made with the county through Inter-municipal Development Plans.

Didsbury agreed to support any future bid by the county to become a member of the water commission when it signed its Inter-municipal Development Plan with the county, as did Carstairs and Olds.

"Plain and simple is the fact that we made an agreement with the county and will honour that agreement," says Didsbury's Mayor Brian Wittal.

New electricity meters to eliminate estimates

BY MARK LAYCOCK
For the Review

Didsbury residents suspicious of those electric bill estimates can sleep a little more soundly as FortisAlberta has announced plans to install new meters at all homes and businesses.

Stan Orlesky, stakeholder relations manager at FortisAlberta, presented the company's plans at this month's council meeting.

The company will be replacing all electric meters within its service area by 2010. The new automated meters will also eliminate the need for meter readers to visit homes.

"We get a lot of calls about bills that are too high, we never get a call from a customer when the bill is on the low side of course."

The new meters will allow the company to bill customers on actual usage through new technology that sends usage data to existing substations where the company will collect the data.

Orlesky said that while the estimate process is still very accurate, the company continues to receive complaints from customers suspicious of their bills.

"We get a lot of calls about bills that are too high, we never get a call from a customer when the bill is on the low side of course."

While the company doesn't have a time frame for when the new meters will be rolled out, most residential meters should be replaced by the end of 2009.

Quad stolen from business

BY MARK LAYCOCK
For the Review

Didsbury RCMP is asking for assistance from the public to catch the individual responsible for stealing a quad from a Carstairs business.

At approximately 2:20 p.m. on Oct. 18, an unknown male entered the Alberta Power Sports in Carstairs asking to see a particular ATV that he called about earlier that day.

The man asked if he could test drive the quad in the parking lot. The man then promptly drove the quad out of the parking lot at a high rate of speed and never returned.

He was last seen travelling north of Carstairs on 10 Avenue.

The man is described as being approximately 20 years of age, five foot five, 225 pounds with a pudgy face. At the time of the incident he was wearing a two-tone flannel coat.

The ATV is a 2008 Yellow Can-Am Outlander fitted with large black exhaust pipes sticking out the sides and valued at over $10,000.

Anyone with any information regarding the incident is asked to contact Cst. Willard with the Didsbury RCMP at: 403-335-3382, or call Crime Stoppers at: 1-800-222-TIPS.

New radio system for emergency responders

The provincial government is developing a new emergency radio system that will connect more than 700 emergency responders province-wide.

The system, expected to cost several million dollars to develop, is being undertaken for use during serious incidents or natural disasters and will feature more than 30,000 radios once it's up and running.

According to the provincial solicitor general and public security ministry, there are four vendors bidding for the project that is slated for construction in early 2009 and operation by 2012.

Provincial RCMP and government departments will be required to use the new system while other responders will be offered access to the system and will choose whether to join. Emergency responders and public safety agencies will purchase their own end-user equipment such as portable radios.

The system will be available to the following agencies: RCMP, municipal police, emergency medical services, fire services, Alberta transportation, Alberta Sustainable Resource Development - enforcement field services, Alberta environment, correctional services, Alberta public security division, Alberta Emergency Management Agency, Service Alberta, and Alberta Tourism, Parks and recreation.

News briefs

Total cost of the new system will be released when the final bid for construction is chosen.

New overpass upgrades to slow QE II traffic

Local residents can expect major headaches next year while travelling the QEII as the province upgrades the south Airdrie overpass.

The $43 million project will involve replacing the QEII/Yankee Valley

Boulevard overpass in hopes of bringing it up to modern safety standards.

"The upgraded interchange allows traffic to move more safely and efficiently, both on the highway and within the City of Airdrie," said Luke Ouellette, minister of transportation.

While construction on the interchange has already begun, delays are not expected for about another year. However, when work does get underway commuters can expect major delays.

Trent Bancarz, spokesperson for Alberta infrastructure and transportation, said crews will have to reduce the number of lanes along the QEII and Yankee Valley Boulevard.

The section of road handles approximately 55,000 vehicles per day, a number that greatly exceeds the original expectations of future traffic volumes when it was first built.

"The upgrades to this interchange are pivotal to our growth," said Linda Bruce, mayor of Airdrie. "The improvement will further alleviate our traffic concerns for both residents and businesses. We are impressed with the Alberta government's commitment to improve the interchange."

Construction on the project is expected to continue into fall 2010.

Tyke #1 battles hard

Didsbury Tyke 2 update

The Tyke 2 team is off to a fantastic start with an incredible mix of terrific kids that are looking forward to all this year has to offer.

We are being led by an amazing group of returning players ready to take our team through this season.

Carson Fischer, Maddox Laveck, Jacob Johnston, Paton Rothenbusch and McKinley Nelson are all sure to be successful leaders to our group of new players. Dawson Mailer, Corrie Heistad, Jesse Schmidt, Carson McCulloch, Drayke May, Emily Biggin, Braydon Sinclair and Colton Campbell are all extremely excited for their first year of hockey and we expect great things from all of these kids.

With the coaching team of Kevin Fischer, Nancy Fischer and Scott Sinclair we know the kids will learn plenty of the skills they need to succeed for years to come. The kids can count on the team being organized thanks to Deana Campbell stepping into the manager job. We are off to a great start with a nine to five win in our first league game vs. Cremona on October 25.

Our goal scorers were Paton (5), McKinley (2), Jacob and Carson M. Assists were added by Dawson, Corrie, Carson F., Carson M., Maddox, McKinley, Braydon and Colton. We will keep you updated with the Tykes' progress as the year continues.

Aspen Ridge update

Aspen Ridge Lodge is always 'buzzing' with activities provided for by our competent recreation staff, keeping us active and giving every opportunity for us to live productive lives for body, mind and soul.

"Oktober Fest", Oct 1, provided us with entertainment by "Buttons and Bows" - and residents enjoyed a wonderful Thanksgiving turkey dinner, with all the trimmings, on Thanksgiving Monday.

Friends of Aspen Ridge Ladies' Auxiliary provided fresh homemade pies for our Annual Fall Tea on October 24. Everyone was welcome to attend.

Residents look forward to our special trick or treat night, on Halloween, preparing candy bags for the children, as well as enjoying a "Halloween Birthday Bash" with a 'surprise dessert', and a special "Halloween Reader's Theater Presentation" performed by residents.

It is 'buzzed' about, that on November 4 our Didsbury Library will bring books and videos to the lodge and continue to do so the first Tuesday of every month.

A Remembrance service will be held Wednesday November 5 at 2 p.m. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Didsbury Mental Health will be presenting a "Depression Awareness" at the lodge on Wednesday, November 12 at 6:30 p.m. Everyone is welcome.

The Resident Family Council meeting will be held on Tuesday, November 18 at 7 p.m. All families are invited and annual elections will be held.

TURNBULL, FLORENCE GRACE (MOLLY)

JULY 19, 1922 - OCTOBER 23, 2008

Florence Grace (Molly) Turnbull passed away peacefully on October 23, 2008 at the age of 86 years. She is survived by her loving daughter Maxine Joyce (Jim) Cochran, Grandsons James Jesse Cochran and Michael Gordon Cochran. She also leaves her brother Macolm (Betty) McBain and sister Frances Ward, many nieces and nephews, in-laws and friends. Molly was predeceased by her husband of 52 years, James McNair (Mac) Turnbull, her parents Isabelle and John, siblings Marjorie, William, Robert, Benjamin, Kathleen, Duncan and George and nephews Kent and Sandy Ward.

Molly was born and raised in Cremona, Alberta, second youngest in a large family. She attended school in Dog Pound and Cremona until Grade 11 and then completed her grade 12 at Western Canada High School in Calgary. She worked at Olds College, saving for Normal (Teacher Training) School in Calgary. She met many life-long friends during these times.

Upon completion of Normal School, Molly was placed in one room schools in Torrington and Vegreville, teaching Ukrainian children there, the Highland Fling. After fighting off the advances of many interested young farmers in those communities, she returned to Cremona and married the love of her life, businessman and Master Electrician, Mac Turnbull. They moved to the farm in 1945 and remained together there until his passing in 1997.

Molly and Mac were blessed in 1951 with the birth of their daughter, Maxine and the 3-M's were a great team. Molly went back to teaching school in 1957 when Maxine started her school days and taught until her retirement in 1980.

Blessed with 2 grandchildren, Jesse and Mike, Molly threw herself into grand-parenting with her characteristic "enthusiasm and spirit". She and Mac would make the "trek" from Cremona to Leslieville regularly and over time saw the entire journey change from potholes to pavement. She would often arrive with the entire meal in the back of the car. Called by her husband "the little red hen" because of her boundless energy, Molly had many projects and interests over the years. She was an avid horsewoman, showing her prized palomino Arab American Saddlebred Abdul in shows throughout central Alberta, winning many ribbons over the years in all classes.

Always a patriot to our country, she acted in the Cold War years as a volunteer in the civil defence; offering to serve rescue workers food in the event of a nuclear attack. She often led the Canada Day Parade as flagbearer of our new flag, the Maple Leaf.

She was innovative in her classroom, always looking for something to engage the students. Molly ran an annual fashion show where her textiles students showcased their garments produced at home and in the classroom. This event became a "gala" affair, looked forward to by all. She, with Dr. Jake Harder, designed and implemented a course of studies whereby boys were given a chance to take Food Studies and Textiles and the girls were given instruction in Industrial Arts. This practice is commonplace today in schools throughout North America.

In the "hip" sixties, Molly used "day-glo", black lights, string art and batik to embrace the modern child and highlight their creations; electrician Mac was often tasked to bring these ideas to fruition.

A new direction with wool and quiviut (muskox wool) earned Molly a National Hilroy Fellowship for innovative teaching practices with her project "Wool, A New Twist to an Old Yarn". Students sheared the sheep (or observed it), carded the cleaned wool, dyed it with natural dyes, used spinning wheels to make the yarn and then knitted projects with it. Molly and Mac were blessed with good health in the years following her retirement; the two of them traveled the countryside, playing music for one and all; Mac playing his guitar and harmonica, Molly distributing angel food cake and poppycock to their audiences. They became avid Lions supporters and had wonderful memories of enjoying the company of their many friends as they entered their "golden years".

Guests at their home would be treated to watermelon baskets stuffed with carved fruits in various shapes. Boiled eggs were magically transformed into penguins and chickens, wonton wrappers and pastas were deepfried and served as "bowties", complete with dipping sauces.

After Mac's passing, Molly travelled to Australia and New Zealand but always felt tied to the beauty of the Alberta landscape. She left the farm in 2000 and spent many good years at the Chinook Winds Lodge, Carstairs and West Park Lodge, Red Deer.

The family would like to thank the staff of Red Deer Regional Hospital, Unit 33, Dr. Ray Hulyk and Dr. Heinrich for their excellent care and concern in Molly's final days. The family would also like to thank the staffs of West Park Lodge, Red Deer and Chinook Winds Lodge, Carstairs for their loving and compassionate care of Molly during the last 8 years. In lieu of flowers, donations may be made, in Molly's name, to STARS or The Lions Club, Cremona. Memorial Service for Molly will be held, Saturday, November 1, 2008 at 2:00 p.m. at Cremona Community Hall, Cremona, Alberta. Arrangements entrusted to Mountain View Funeral Chapel, Olds. Phone: 556-3223. Proudly serving our community for over 45 years.

In loving memory of Gwen Hiemer who passed away October 27, 2006

October comes with great regret. A month that we will never forget. We hold our tears when we speak your name. But the ache in our hearts remains the same. May the winds of love blow gently. And whisper so you can hear. That we still love and miss you. And wish that you were here.

Market Watch

Will we experience the same meltdown that we see occurring south of the border? The answer is, NO! Will we escape unharmed from the financial crisis the U.S. is going through? The answer, once again, is NO! The question that needs to be asked is; how deep will the financial crisis affect Canadians? There is one thing for certain and that is that we, as Canadians, are experiencing a much stronger economy which has grown each year since the start of the decade. Canada's housing market is holding up well. We must also note that Canada's housing market has not experienced the same sub-prime mortgage crisis that we see in the U.S. We have been saying that the slow-down was inevitable. "What Alberta is experiencing now is merely a consequence that comes from an unsustainable period of dramatic growth" (CREN). This quote sums up the picture we see here in Didsbury/Carstairs (Alberta) as well.
